/KERNEL MEMORY

I work in the medium of stone to create pieces that physically engage the viewer and provoke thought. Stone is the foundation of the earth and our monuments and sculptures — forever changing and always reminding, stone is both the subject and material of my work.

Scale in relation to the human body is of prime interest to me. I am interested in how the components of a particular work formally relate to each other and to the viewer's body to enhance a direct mental and physical connection with the earth.
